

SHE 'JOLLIED' GILL. CHARGES SUPPRESSED

Miss Rosenthal Testifies Against the Accused Policeman.

Denies that She Confessed to Being a Little Indiscreet.

And Insists that He Had No Real Encouragement.

Patrolman Thomas Gill was placed on trial before Commissioner Kerwin, at Police Headquarters, at noon today, on charges preferred by Miss Hannah Rosenthal, of 30 East Eighth street, who alleges that she was insulted by the policeman on the night of Dec. 7, in East Eighth street, and upon her refusal to accede to his dishonorable proposals was arrested and locked up overnight.

In Essex Market Court next day Miss Rosenthal was acquitted of the charge of soliciting, and was advised by the Justice to prefer charges at Headquarters.

Gill is attached to the East Fifth street station. On the night in question he was doing special duty in citizens' clothes in Eighth street, between Second and Third avenues. Miss Rosenthal had just left her home at 30 East Eighth street, with whom she was on a sight-seeing tour, at the Third avenue "L" station.

Gill pleaded guilty. He was defended by Lawyers Louis J. Grant and Mark Alter. Miss Rosenthal was not represented by counsel. She was the first witness called. She related the circumstances above, with a few additional details.

Then Mr. Grant began the cross-examination. She denied that she proposed to Officer Gill that he go with her to the Cooper Union Hotel, at 100 West 14th street, and Fourth avenue, or that she said anything to him at all that might lead him to suspect that she was a prostitute or an innocent, guileless girl. She admitted that she had at first smiled upon Gill, whom she thought of as a good-looking young fellow, and had "jollied" him some.

It was after the "jollifying," she said, that she was arrested.

She also denied that she confessed to police matron that she had acted indiscreetly or that her father in upbraiding her in the station told her that he had expected just what had happened.

The witness, in response to a series of questions, said that she seldom went to Harlem.

Do you know any "L" employees? asked Mr. Grant.

"No, sir, not one," she replied.

Do you know George Aiken, a fireman?

"No, sir, I never heard of him."

Aiken was called into the room, but the witness said she did not know him.

Did you go to the Mount Morris Hotel, at 100 West 14th street, and Twenty-ninth street and Third avenue, with a man on June 6, 1934?

"That's a falsehood," replied the witness.

Now, really, Miss Rosenthal, Lawyer Grant said, you are not a prostitute, are you?

"No, sir, I am not," she replied.

Did you ever hear that your father and your grandfather had been arrested for fraud and stolen goods?

"No, sir, I never heard of it," she replied.

Williams Irritated.

The Inspector wanted to go into some explanation, and became irritated when Mr. Gill stopped him.

"I don't want to have any altercation with you," said the Inspector, "but I want to know what you are doing here."

"I want to know what you are doing here," replied Williams.

"Now, don't try any of your bravado here," returned Mr. Gill, and the witness growled.

A complaint against the Inspector by John P. Fitzgerald was not on the record of the witness as furnished to the Police Headquarters.

Col. Fellows appeared for the complaint in that case, didn't he? A. I don't remember much about it.

Col. Fellows had just appeared on the platform with the Committee, and this amused the crowd.

man he will appear before this Committee, notwithstanding his laryngitis and bronchitis."

"I can remember it," said the doctor.

Police Surgeon Daniel J. Donovan said he had visited Capt. Meakin, in accordance with the rules of the department, and had made a report of his condition.

"If he was not sick I should have ordered him back to duty. That is my duty," he said.

No Check on Collusion.

Q. Has Capt. Meakin been placed on the sick list by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by your authority alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you do not check on the doctor or there should be collusion between them? A. No, sir.

Q. And there would be no way of discovering the collusion? A. Not in such a case.

Many Captains Called.

Inspector Williams Reported Them All Sick.

With a prospect that Inspector of Police Alexander S. Williams would occupy the witness stand during the greater part of the day, public interest in the hearing of the Lexow Committee was more intense than ever this morning.

Notwithstanding the combined effects of rain, sleet, and snow, and sidewalks and streets inundated with slush, the hearing, which rather than in the corridors of the Court House and besieged the entrance to the committee-room was as great as ever.

Something in the line of a Port Arthur massacre was looked for this morning when the Lexow Committee was called to the witness stand.

beating rain, which drenched everything in sight.

And here is where the snow did a very bad thing. It blocked up the sewers, and formed a thin, icy crust on the sidewalks to hold the ticks rain, and the slush made tempting floating islands in these miniature ponds, on which the unwary pedestrian put his faith and his foot, to his intense disgust and sorrow, believing the crust to be the top of a collection which had been raised from the depths like King Arthur's sword.

Rubber Boots at a Premium.

And so this morning when the workman and the workwoman stepped out into the world they found all the elements in nature—excepting heat—against them. There was no walking—it was floundering, and those who were unfortunate enough to come out unprepared with rubber boots and storm coats were wet from the ground up before half a block had been covered.

At almost every corner there was a flying leap in prospect, with the chances on one side or the other.

When one man was alone in the street, the language of those who did not align on their feet.

the utmost indifference was manifested by Secretary Burns. He said that Sup. Warren had complained of every thing, and was supposed to know when the public wanted clean law.

Commissioner Andrews is supposed to have put the issue of the law in a nutshell, but there is only a wild supposition. He has not obeyed the law.

If that is a fact, it is safe to assume that all principal crossings below Fifty-ninth street could have been cleared before 6 o'clock this morning.

Maths Very Gladly Delayed.

Superintendent of the City Delivery of Mails Morgan, was probably the worst annoyed man in the city over the storm. When men were working hard, he threw up both hands despairingly and retorted the usual phrase.

"Everything is put out," said he. "The carriers find it almost impossible to make the rounds in the morning, and the mail is delayed."
